Probate notices.

Mr. Charles Hardy has completed his last will on Adams street, and at a late hour on Friday evening was "dropped in," attracted thither by his being lighted for the first time with gas. Mr. Hardy, a man who never does anything by halves, has erected and finished a residence with him which may be well satisfied.

Deaths of Nathaniel Atkinson, Esq.

We regret to learn of the death of Nathaniel Atkinson, esq., of Biddeford, N. Y., formerly of Biddeford, a gentleman and a gentleman universally beloved and esteemed. His remains will arrive in this city for interment this afternoon.

At Kennebunk.

On Friday evening last we enjoyed listening to a dramatic performance in the new town hall at Kennebunk, given by the company of that beautiful village. The dramatists of the evening were Miss Sarah, Lizzie and Olive Thompson, Miss Mary, Miss and Miss Florence Hooper, Miss Clark, Miss and Mrs. J. C. Lord, and the actress—"The Coming Woman." We may be excused for saying that the women on the stage about that if they were not coming themselves they had all gone.

Golden Wedding.

The golden wedding is an institution with which we do not often meet in life's pilgrimage. Such are the fragility of the race, that the glow of early love will sometimes die out, and the once loved be forsaken, or the irrepressible hand intervene to break the most tender love. Earthly joys are not unfrequently but shadows appearing for a little time and then vanishing away. But Heaven now and then, offers to the children of earth, the spectacle of an uninterrupted course of love and companionship, which is a rare and precious thing.

On returning to our file of the Kennebunk Gazette of 1818, we found under the head, "Marriages," in Newburyport, Mr. Adam McCallough of this town, to Miss Hannah Chase of the former place. Fifty years from the date of that union having elapsed, under the impulse of such a rounding of wedded life among us, a few friends of Mr. McCallough gathered at his house on Monday evening last. He is the brother of Hugh McCallough, Secretary of the Kennebunk. While prosperity has been the lot of the latter, adversity seems to have been the constant attendant of the former. They are the sons of Hugh McCallough, one the richest and most influential man of Kennebunk. But the direful influence of the war of 1812, divested him of his ships, and of nearly all his property. The same untoward fate has attended the son, who has remained at the old homestead; and he has had to work his way onward through similar distressing adversity. A few days after his marriage, on the night before the day in which they were to enter the home of their conjugal life, the house took fire, and with all his wife's wardrobe, and much of his furniture, was consumed. The navigation in which, for many years, he was interested, was also wrecked, and his property was lost. He was followed by one more serious, the loss of health, and soon continued suffering and pain came upon him, and thus apparently, continual sorrow has been his lot. His joys have been limited to the endowment of his marriage relation, and to such as come from his Christian faith, which is a bulwark to the soul against all the attacks of affliction and outward distress.

It is one of the attributes of a sound Christianity, that it is mindful of its friends in the day of trouble. Its sympathies are then quickened into life and action; and its friends then gathered under its roof, after having participated of the bounty generously provided for the occasion, as a token of their interest in the happiness of himself and family, on rising, left on the table, the generous sum of five hundred and fifty dollars; and after an hour's social, pleasant intercourse let them with the kindest wishes for their future welfare. B. Kennebunk, Oct. 23, 1868.

Family Anniversary.

The twentieth anniversary of the Roberts family meeting, according to an appointment Oct. 7th at the residence of James N. Roberts, of Lyman. The day was mild and lovely, and in a most harmonious with festive scene. Three worthy sons from Massachusetts (Charles, merchants of Boston) were present, which gave much pleasure and interest to the occasion generally. On Wednesday morning a large handsome flag was suspended across the house and another in the front yard, bearing the honored names of Grant and Colfax. Oh! the dear old time honored flag, our nation's pride; and glory inspired every patriotic heart (and I am happy to say this sentiment was almost universal) with new enthusiasm.

Massachusetts.

The meeting was called to order, and the 18th and 13th Rules read, and prayer offered by J. N. Roberts, President of the meeting. At half past twelve the welcome dinner bell rang, and fifty-seven in number were served to a most generous dinner. The meeting again came to order in the afternoon which was interspersed with singing, remarks, and business, and closed at half past four with a prayer offered by Daniel Roberts, esq. Another collection was then served which consisted of cranberry grapes, pears, nuts, cocoanut cakes, tongue, fruit, and plain cake, cheese, tea, &c., which closed the fraternal meeting of the Roberts family. A. M. Richards, P. M. Lyman, Oct. 14, 1858.
